WABI-SABI COLLECTION

“Wabi-Sabi is a Japanese philosophy that beauty can be found in imperfection and impermanence. It’s a beauty of things modest and humble. It’s a beauty of things unconventional. It is the opposite of vulgarity. The costs of achieving this kind of minimalism are seemingly inconsistent with its mission of aesthetic humility. This kind of luxury is for a select few: The Emperor of Japan had a wabi garden. Wabi is for people who already have a lot.

THE TRIPLE BURNT COLLECTION

“I could make up a pretentious story about how I was ‘inspired by the volcanoes in Sumatra,’ but...do you want to know the truth? I was planning on developing my St. Barts Collection, which requires a lot of sunlight and dry weather. I planned an entire trip to be in Indonesia during the dry season, and it wouldn’t stop raining! One day I just grabbed a blow torch to dry the wood and burnt it. I sanded it, burnt it again and again and the Triple Burnt Collection was born.
